

Our Curriculum.

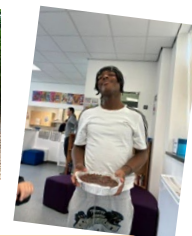

This term, students have explored themes around crime, society and personal responsibility through discussion-based learning, research and extended writing activities. These lessons have helped students develop confidence in sharing opinions, debating ideas and improving their written communication. In English, students studied Holes, linking the themes of justice and consequences to their wider learning while continuing to develop reading fluency and comprehension skills. In Food Technology, students have enjoyed making a range of dishes including rocky road cakes and lasagne, helping to build confidence, independence and practical life skills.

This term, students have achieved AQA Awards linked to Humanities topics and communication, supporting both academic progress and engagement.

We have continued to develop our Voice 21 approach, with a strong focus on speaking and listening. Students have taken part in presentations, discussions and group activities, building confidence in expressing their ideas and communicating clearly with others.

Our Inclusion.

Our Engagement.

This term, students have engaged well in a broad range of enrichment activities including rounders, cricket, athletics and boxing, supporting physical health, teamwork and confidence. Alongside this, targeted mental health mentoring has provided additional support for students' wellbeing and emotional regulation. Students have also taken part in on-site gardening, developing responsibility, practical skills and a sense of pride in their environment.

This term, students have continued to develop their personal skills and wellbeing through a range of meaningful experiences. Mental Health Week provided opportunities for reflection, discussion and strategies to support emotional wellbeing. Students also took part in CPR training, helping them develop vital life-saving skills and confidence in responding to emergencies. In addition, the introduction of Forest School has supported resilience, teamwork and engagement through outdoor, hands-on learning experiences.

Our Personal Development.

Safeguarding

Safeguarding has remained a central focus at Engage this term, with students taking part in discussion-based sessions around county lines, healthy relationships and exploitation. Through open conversations and scenario-based activities, students explored how to recognise unsafe situations, understand manipulation and coercion, and identify where and how to seek support.
